Hon. H. J. Raymond of the N. Y. Times, and those that pay as they go, curtail their expenditures. His notes are constantly maturing and must be met. This gives him uneasiness. Heretofore he has been enabled by great efforts to meet his obligations as they became due, but now efforts of the most extraordinary character have to be resorted to. Our merchant, to save his credit, commences to pay four per cent. for twenty days. At the end of that time he finds himself still more sunbarrassed, and has again to apply to his friends for assistance. This is more and more reluctantly granted. This is more and more reluctantly granted until he is finally informed that it is impossible for them to extend him any further relief, accompanied with a gentle hint that they expect him to repay all that he has borrowed without much delay. Our young merchant then finds himself owamped; makes the state of the real property in the meant time, reamont state the amount of the dividend.

THE GOLDEN SALVE—A Great Healing Remody, It is with much pleasure we announce the advect of this new article in our city, which has met with auch signal suspens have termed with cases of truly marredous cures. They chronicle one where the life of a lady was recently saved—a case of broken breast; another where the life of a child was saved—a case of chaing; another of a lady whose face was much distincted by scrotilous humor, which was brought to a health scrion in a few lasys, also, another of an old man, who had a sore on his foot for twenty years—cured in a few weeks—Our citizens will not be slow in getting at its merits,
